between New York and Montreal. The delicacy from Montreal differs in the preparation process, which makes it sweeter, has a denser dough, is smaller, but has a larger opening. We will eat another one in London, this soft and fluffy bagel does not look like the crunchy, chewy and much harder bagel from New York.

14 zł In a nutshell, a traditional bagel is made of yeast dough, boiled in water, and then baked. But which is the traditional one? We all know how flavours change depending on the place, it is similar in this case. A serious dispute over the bagel taste goes on.

Ours is close to the American style. It is crunchy, served hot with a variety of toppings, perfect for breakfast or for a snack.
